

Queen is a British rock band that formed in London in 1970. The classic line-up was Freddie Mercury (lead vocals, piano), Brian May (guitar, vocals), Roger Taylor (drums, vocals), and John Deacon (bass guitar).

The genres they have been associated with include progressive rock, hard rock, heavy metal, psychedelic rock, blues rock, art rock, pop rock, glam rock, and dance/disco.

Queen also wrote songs that were inspired by genres that are not typically associated with rock, such as ragtime, opera, gospel, vaudeville.

In 1991, Mercury died of bronchopneumonia, a complication of AIDS, and Deacon retired in 1997. Since then, May and Taylor have occasionally performed together, including collaborations with Paul Rodgers and with Adam Lambert.

In November 2014, Queen released a new album, Queen Forever, featuring vocals from the late Freddie Mercury.

By the early 1980s, Queen were one of the biggest stadium rock bands in the world. Their performance at 1985's Live Aid is regarded as one of the greatest in rock history.

“ The Show Must Go On ” is a song by the British rock band Queen, featured as the twelfth and final track on their 1991 album Innuendo. It is written mainly by Brian May.

The song chronicles the effort of Freddie Mercury continuing to perform despite approaching the end of his life.

Mercury was so ill when the band recorded the song in 1990, that May had concerns as to whether he was physically capable of singing it. Recalling Mercury's performance, May states; "I said, 'Fred, I don't know if this is going to be possible to sing.' And he went, 'I'll f-cking do it, darling' — vodka down — and went in and killed it, completely lacerated that vocal.“

The song was released as a single in the United Kingdom on 14 October 1991, just six weeks before Mercury died.

"The show must go on" is a well-known phrase in show business, meaning that regardless of what happens, the show must still be put on for the waiting patrons.

This is an abbreviation of the true saying which is "The show must go on, otherwise we'll have to give them their money back"

Empty spaces, what are we living for Abandoned places, I guess we know the score
On and on, does anybody know what we are looking for?
Another hero, another mindless crime
Behind the curtain, in the pantomime
Hold the line, does anybody want to take it anymore?

The show must go on
The show must go on, yeah
Inside my heart is breaking
My make-up may be flaking
But my smile still stays on

Whatever happens, I'll leave it all to chance
Another heartache, another failed romance
On and on, does anybody know what we are living for?
I guess I'm learning
I must be warmer now
I'll soon be turning
Round the corner now
Outside the dawn is breaking
But inside in the dark I'm aching to be free

The show must go on
The show must go on, yeah yeah
Ooh, inside my heart is breaking
My make-up may be flaking
But my smile still stays on

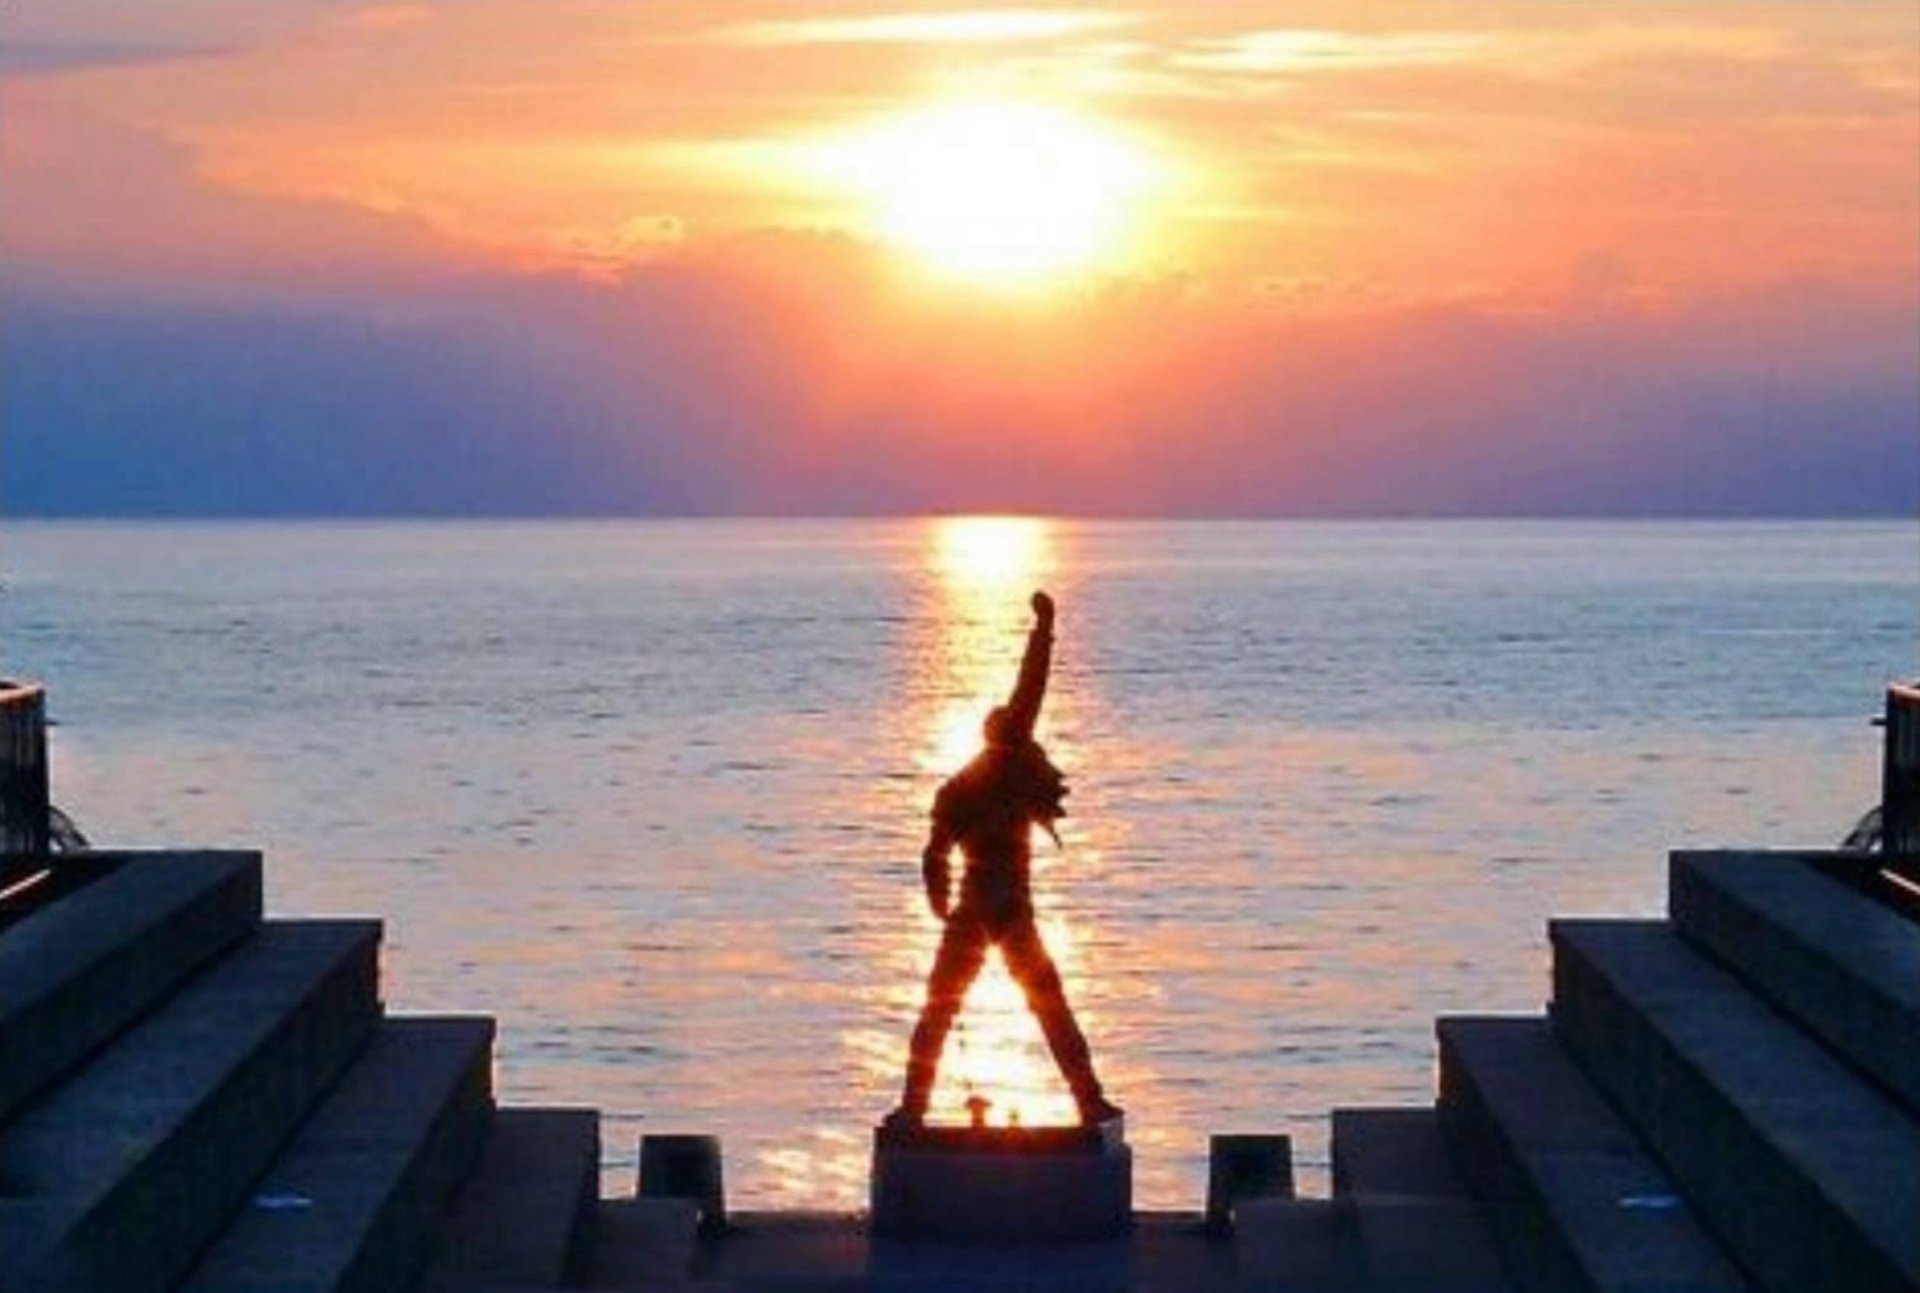

My soul is painted like the wings of butterflies
Fairy tales of yesterday will grow but never die
I can fly, my friends

The show must go on (go on, go on, go on) yeah yeah
The show must go on (go on, go on, go on)
I'll face it with a grin
I'm never giving in
On, with the show

Ooh, I'll top the bill, I'll overkill
I have to find the will to carry on
On with the show
On with the show
The show, the show must go on
Go on, go on, go on, go on, go on

The Show Must Go On...
