Doctor Sanford's House

"The house of everyone is to him as his castle and fortress".

Sir Edward Coke (1552-1634)

There is no place like home. Home, sweet home.

Do you know?

A British family prefers a house with a fireplace and a garden to a flat in a modern house with central heating. It's prestigious to have own house. They give not only numbers but "names" of houses. For example: "The Cabin", "Blue Windows", "Forget me not Cottage".

Doctor Sandford's House

Doctor Sandford's house is not large, but it is comfortable and well-planned. It is a small two-storeyed cottage.

In front of the house there is a green lawn and a lot of flowers. Behind it there is a little orchard with a few fruit trees in it. On the ground floor there is a kitchen, a pantry, a dining-room, a cosy sitting-room and Dr. Sandford's study. There are also several rooms upstairs on the first floor: the Sandfords' bedrooms, Grandmother's room, which is also Benny's nursery, Betty's room and the bathroom.

The furniture is modern and quite new. But Doctor Sandford says he must pay a lot of money for the house and the furniture. He must pay the money for many years before he can call the house his own.

- My parents have a new flat in the district. There is a living room, a kitchen, a bathroom, a dining room in the house. The living room is larger than bedroom. It is nice, comfortable, light and airy. There are beautiful curtains on the window. There is a colour TV on the corner of the room. And a beautiful green carpet on the floor. My parents have got a lot of Russian and English books at home. They are in the bookcases and on the shelves. The bedroom is smaller than the living room. There is not much furniture there.
