A very British tradition

"There are few hours in life more agreeable than the hour dedicated to the ceremony known as afternoon tea."

Henry James

- Tea is very popular among the English; it may almost be called their national drink. Tea is welcome in the morning, in the afternoon and in the evening. The English like it strong and fresh made.

«High Tea»

- Tea means two things. It is a drink and a meal. Some people have afternoon tea, so called «high tea» with sandwiches, tomatoes and salad, pears or pineapples and cakes. That is what they call good tea. It is a substantial meal.

Tea-time is a small meal eaten in the late afternoon (usually between about 3:30 and 5:00). Occasionally people may have a full afternoon tea or a cream tea: this includes a scone with jam and cream (usually either whipped cream or thick clotted cream).

The English afternoon tea ceremony!

The English know how to make tea.
In England people say jokingly:

*“The test of good tea
simple. If a spoon
stands up in it, then it is strong enough!”*
