Интернет-безопасность

- Keep your computer in a family room or an open space where you can watch what your child is doing, and can control how long your child is on the computer.
- Make sure that your child spends only one or two hours a day in front of a computer screen.
- Discuss with your child which sites you are happy for them to look at, and have a look at your child's favourite sites yourself. Teach your child to use search engines, and look at sites together.
- If you are worried about your child seeing unsuitable material on the web, you can install specialist software which blocks sites that have certain words and phrases.
- Make sure that your child does not give personal information over the web (name, age, address, telephone number). Teach your child to ask you first.

Интернет-безопасность

- Make sure that your child asks your permission before entering any competitions or downloading any materials.
- Make sure that your child does not post any photos of himself/herself on the web.
- Teach your child not to click on links in emails, unless they know who the email is from.
- If your child wants to use a chatroom, make sure that you have a look at it first. Be around when your child is chatting.
- Teach your child not to make arrangements to meet anyone that they have met on the web.
- Make sure that your child keeps their internet passwords a secret.
- Teach your child to tell you if they see anything that they think is suspicious or that they don't like.
- Write a list of rules and guidelines for using the computer and internet. Stick the rules up next to the computer.
