The Emperor Paul I
(1754-1801)

Summer Palace in St Petersburg

In 1797 Paul I ordered to pull down the palace and to built a castle in its place.

The castle was erected in 1797-1800 by ....

Vasily Bashenov
(1737-1799)

Vincenzo Brenna
(1745-1820)

There was a legend about Archangel Michael

A shining youth appeared to a guard at the point near the Summer Palace and ordered to tell Paul I to construct a temple in his honour in this place.

The castle was surrounded with trenches with drawbridges, twenty canals. There were secret passages inside the castle, the earthen ramparts and moats .

Another legend associated with the unusual - sunset orange - the color of the walls. It is believed that this color was wearing gloves at the Emperor's favorite Anna Gagarina. On one of the palace balls she dropped a glove, but instead return it to the owner, Paul took the little thing with him, determined to immortalize the color on the walls of his residence.

The emperor resided only some forty days in his new castle. He was murdered by his close associates at night on the 12th of March in 1801.
