English Meals

The English usually have 4 meals a day: br__ kfast, lunch, t__a (5 o'clock), and di___. Breakfast can be a full "English breakfast" of c__n flakes with m__k and sugar, or b__con and eggs, toast and ma__ma__ade, tea or co__fee. Some people, however, have just a c__p of tea or coffee with a toast. This is usually called a "continental breakfast".

At midday everything is stopped for l__nch. Most offices and small shops are closed for an hour and the city pavements are full of people on their way to c__fes, coffee bars, rest__rants. Factory and plant workers usually eat in their canteens.

The English like what they call "good plain f__d". Usually they like st__k, roast beef, Yorkshire p__dd__ng, and f__sh and ch__ps.

Afternoon tea is taken at about 5 o'clock, but it can hardly be called a meal. It is a cup of tea and a cake or b__sc__its. At the weekends afternoon tea is a special occasion. Friends and visitors are often invited to have a chat over a cup of tea.

Dinner is the most substantial meal of the whole day. It is usually eaten at 7 o'clock. The first course may be s__p (though the English don't like it very much). The main course will often be fish or m__t, perhaps the traditional r__st beef of old England, and a lot of v__get_bles.

The, next course will be something sweet and often b__ked, such as a fr_it p_e. Last of all there may be ch__se, often with biscuits. It is common knowledge that the English are very fond of tea. They like to have "a nice cup of tea" 6 or 8 times a d_y, sometimes even m_re.

On Chr__stm_s Day a roast t_rk_y is traditionally c__ked for dinner. It is usually followed by Christmas pu_di_g.
