

American Currency

{ Kashaeva Alina 11-B

The monetary unit of the United States, one of the major reserve currencies in the world. Symbols in English texts: $. Literal code of the currency: USD.

The US dollar also has the status of a national currency, in some other countries, it is the US dollar is often more (parallel) currency in the countries where the national currency is not the only legal tender, including cases where its own currency is not actually used in a cash and / or cashless circulation.

It is believed that more than 80% of world trade is calculated in US dollars

Appearance

Every day in the United States produces about 35 million banknotes of various denominations, totaling approximately 635 million dollars. 95% of the banknotes are printed annually, are used to replace worn-out money.

The first woman, whose portrait was struck on the American coin was Queen Isabella of Spain. This happened in 1926. The first American so honored was the Martha Washington. In 1886 and 1891 her portrait was printed on one-dollar silver certificate. In many American colleges in use their own currencies students.

Banknotes in denominations of one million dollars does not exist, and never has been! There is only banknotes with face value of one hundred thousand. They are used exclusively for carrying out banking operations.

The first federal building, which has built the US government, was the Mint in 1973 .. Money, or rather a lot of money - this is what dreams of the majority of ordinary citizens. Therefore, such a popular and enjoy the lottery. Although, according to statistics, the chance to break a big jackpot are only one in ten million.