What is Discrimination?

- Discrimination refers to any instance of treating someone in a less favorable manner on the basis of that person's characteristics. The legal definition of discrimination, however, is narrower than the dictionary definition of discrimination. Under the law, only certain behaviors are considered discrimination and only certain classes or types of discrimination are illegal.

Discrimination

The prejudicial treatment or consideration of a person, racial group, minority, etc. based on category rather than individual characteristics, excluding or restricting members of one category on the grounds of race, sex, or age.

This is not only our mission, but also our promise, and why leading specialists who treat eating disorders, alcohol abuse and drug addiction, and other cooccurring disorders recognize Timberline Knolls' treatment success and recommend their patients to us.

In coclude...

In coclude, discrimination is a global problem of the modern world, and we need to pay attention to it. Especially in Russia, because we do not put this issue on par with other important problems. Many people do not believe discrimination is the primary problem , but the statistics and the consequences force you to pay more attention. As well as mental disorders. People who suffer from disorders are not able to get help in our country. Unfortunately, today this issue is the place to be...

And I really hope that we can destroy this problem SOON.
